

Merging Collections for User's Benefit

Sonia Smith

Description: At McGill University, most of the collection that supports the Jewish Studies program is located at the Humanities and Social Sciences Library. However, the Nahum Gelber Law Library also has a strong collection on Talmudic Law. In 2015, the presenter worked on a project to relocate the Talmudic Law books into one library. In this presentation, she will share tips on how to proceed and detail problems and benefits of combining collections.

Sonia Smith works at McGill University as the Jewish Studies and Law Liaison Librarian. She also worked at the Jewish Public Library. Originally from Mexico City, she is fluent in Spanish, English, French, Hebrew and Yiddish. Sonia is presently the President of the Quebec Library Association.
